

ABSTRACT

A method of filling a damascene structure with liner and W characterized by improved resistance and resistance spread and adequate adhesion comprising: a given damascene structure coated by a liner which purposely provides poor step coverage into the aforementioned structure, followed by a CVD W deposition, and followed by a metal isolation technique.